

DIAMOND SIDEBOARD

BY SIMON JOHNS

The Diamond Sideboard plays with different planes. A collection of rectangular columns placed at random angles and depths forms a facade interrupted by two thick horizontal planes of solid wood. This array of volumes serves as doors to a fully functional cabinet, with adjustable shelves. The visual cues associated with doors, regularity in size, handles or hinges, are absent, making this sideboard about volume and presence. Shown here in white oak and antique bronze, the piece is also available in blackened ash and hand polished aluminum.
