

OCTOBER DINING TABLE

BY DE LA ESPADA

October Dining Table is the material embodiment of a threshold—a quiet manifesto for the new season. Celebrating the dialectic between the enduring and the ephemeral, its timber structure communicates the steadfast presence of institutional wisdom, a foundation that holds and supports while above it, the tabletop is conceived as a plane of possibility, its surface a stage for the transient rituals of gathering and exchange. It is here that the fleeting present, be it a book, a shared meal or a moment of collaboration will be displayed and served. Together, the base and the top enact a tension: the permanent structure cradles the dynamic plane, just as tradition provides the platform for reinvention. To gather at this table is not merely to convene, but to participate in the very act of giving form to what is yet to be. A testament to the belief that every new idea requires a foundation from which to leap.
